

CASE STUDIES

We've Done It All

Jefferson County

Louisville, KY

Jefferson County has one of the largest publicly operated school bus fleets in North America. With over 1100 buses operating out of 11 divisions, their operations are complex. In 2013, Jeffco started a search for a new video provider. As part of this search, they tested several systems and from that research developed a specification to fit their unique needs. Through a competitive process, 247 Security was chosen to be their supplier going forward. As part of their requirements, Jeffco specified the installation of a wireless management system that would securely make video available to hundreds of qualified individuals who would, on a daily basis, review video.

North America Central Bus

Illinois

Previously known as Illinois Central, North America Central Bus has been a customer of 247 Security for well over a decade. This large supplier of contract services uses the partnership with the 247 to meet the video requirements of their many school district customers. These requirements vary and the versatility of the 247 workhorse DVR, ZEUS, has served them well. When a supplier like North America Central has to adapt to specific customer video requirements, having a core video system that can adapt to many configurations is very valuable.